The Area of Woman's Freedom from Wahhabism Perspective

Mohammad Ali Mirali, Azam Rezaei

Abstract

6 Man and woman as human have similar duties and rights but based on the physical, moral and behavioral differences between man and woman, created by God, distinctive duties and rights have been introduced for woman. These distinctive duties and rights for woman has caused some extremist views about woman presented by some extremist groups who have very extremist theology, methodology and intellectual foundations. These extremist groups having a minimalistic attitude together with going to extremes, go beyond the frames of true religion and make a lot of limits for women. Wahhabism as one these extremist artificial Islamic groups in contemporary history, by prioritizing Naql (Narrations and Hadith) to Aql (reason) and preferring the authoritativeness of the prophet's companions sayings (Hujjiyyat-e Qawl-e Sahaba) have decreased the nature of woman as an object so that they deny many individual, social and political rights of woman although these rights exist and have been recognized by true Islamic Sharia and revelation. In other words, they deprive woman of her natural and divine rights and bar her from different activities in different areas. The present paper by benefiting from an analytic and attributive method tries to explain the area of social and political freedom of women's activities from Wahhabism perspective.

The possibility of including the maintenance of the expenses of the wife's treatment and health care

(with emphasis on article 1107 of the Civil Code)

Ahmad Mortazi, Hossein Haji Hosseini

Abstract

Article 1107 of the Civil Code (for the year 1314) limits the validity of the wife's maintenance in the legal resources and does not take care of the other needs of the woman, including the expenses of treating the wife and her health care. However, with the amendment of the article in 1381, the cases of woman's alimony, was said and included the said expenses as well. It is understood from the word "usual", which includes all cases of woman's alimony, but is it intended that the word "usual" is for expenses or diseases? In which there is a difference that has significant implications for the husband's costs towards his wife. This study, based on the descriptive-analytical approach and based on the written sources and after the research on the opinions presented, on the one hand, the right view is to include the expenditure on the expenditure and, on the other hand, that the word "usual" is for the expenses not for the diseases. Therefore, in each disease the expenses were regular, the husband paid.

Key words: The expenses of treating the wife, the usual diseases, Incurable diseases, wife's alimony.
